

The Journey

I see each day as a journey I shall take with God. I look forward to living through it, learning from it, laughing and loving in it, and leaving a legacy after it that brings the most glory to Him. I will set the inner compass of my convictions with the true moral north of God's eternal word. Integrity will be the needle that points the way. I will remember the cross of Christ. I will remember that he who gives the most lives the most. Therefore, today, I will try to give. I will set my affections on things above, follow God's word and speak the truth in love. I will look today for the good in others and rejoice in what I find. I will not speak ill of any and try to never be unkind. I will measure success not in money, or in numbers, nor in size, but in the trying, for life is something we do and each one gains who tries. I thank God for the chance to choose. I choose to kneel and know His grace, to pray and seek His face, to serve and find my place in faith and obedience. I choose to try, and fail or succeed, to learn from each experience. I choose to chance the open sea of today's possibilities rather than remain safely moored to the docks of yesterday's triumphs or defeats. I choose to risk the ship to deliver the goods, to reach the goal, to help one person or save one soul, and trust it all to providence. -

Injiman DeRidden